DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 48-68 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The specification fails to adequately define the following markush style limitations of independent claims 48 and 59 :

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of value for process outputs

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of value for transactional data.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of value for process features data.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of external factors for process outputs.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of external factors for transactional data.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of external factors for process features data.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of risks for process outputs.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of risks for process features data.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of risks for process outputs.

In claim 49 a mix of processes

In claims 51, combinations of value and risk

In claim 54, combinations of the elements therein.

In claim 58, alliances, brands, channels, customers, customer relationships, employees, employee relationships, equipment, knowledge, information technology, intellectual property, investors, partnerships, processes, production equipment, quality, vendors, supply chains, vendor relationships, visitors and combinations thereof and where the one or more organization segments of value are selected from the group consisting of current operation, real option, derivatives, excess financial assets, market sentiment and combinations thereof.

In claims 59 a means for storing and processing said computational model, specification and data, means for identifying an impact of each feature on one or more expected process outputs; means for mapping the expected process outputs to the computational model of organization financial performance; means for creating a financial simulation model for the organization using said mappings, model and data.

In claim 68, an organization matrix of risk defined by one or more organization segments of value and one or more organization related risks where the segments of value are selected from the group consisting of current operation, real option, derivative, excess financial asset, market sentiment and combinations thereof and where the organization risks are selected from the group consisting of variability risks, market volatility risks, contingent liabilities, event risks, extreme risks, normal risks, strategic risks and combinations thereof.

Claims 48-68 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In the claims the following terms are vague and indefinite

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of value for process outputs

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of value for transactional data.

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of value for process features data.

Art Unit: 3693

A contribution to an organization value and an organization risk for each of one or more elements of risks for process outputs.

In claim 49 a mix of processes

In claims 51, combinations of value and risk

In claim 54, combinations of the elements therein.

In claim 58, alliances, brands, channels, customers, customer relationships, employees, employee relationships, equipment, knowledge, information technology, intellectual property, investors, partnerships, processes, production equipment, quality, vendors, supply chains, vendor relationships, visitors and combinations thereof and where the one or more organization segments of value are selected from the group consisting of current operation, real option, derivatives, excess financial assets, market sentiment and combinations thereof is a markush claim with elements that are indefinite and are of overlapping scopes.

In claim 68, an organization matrix of risk defined by one or more organization segments of value and one or more organization related risks where the segments of value are selected from the group consisting of current operation, real option, derivative, excess financial asset, market sentiment and combinations thereof is a Markush format with elements that are indefinite and are overlapping scopes.

Moreover, organization risks selected from the group consisting of variability risks, market volatility risks, contingent liabilities, event risks, extreme risks, normal risks, strategic risks and combinations thereof is again a Markush format with elements that are indefinite and are overlapping scopes..
